WAX TAPER DISQUALIFIED: JOCKEY COMBS SET DOWN FOR POUL

RIDING AT SHEEPSHEAD BAY. Narrow Escape From Death—The Tidal Stakes Easy for Watercolor—Cameron Wiss the Passy Stakes—To-day's Entries. Jockey Shaw had a narrow escape from death at the Sheepshead Bay racetrack yesterday afternoon, and it may some time before the crack rider will perform with his usual perve. It was in the fifth race, a handicap for three-year-olds and upward, at one mile and a furiong, that the accident occurred. Wax Taper, the Candlemas colt, that took up 120 pounds the other day and beat a good field with odds of 10 to 1 about him, was the favorite, his price being reduced from 8 to 5 to it to 10. Prince of Melbourne, carrying top weight, was second pick at fours. It was the Prince's first time out and the talent did not Carbuncie and All Gold were backed but not enough to keep their prices from receding. Shaw had the mount on Margraviate, 15 to t. When they got under way in good order, Margraviate, All Gold, Prince of Melbourne and Fonsolee, 500 to 1, showed in front. Wax Taper, getting away last, was quickly pocketed and Combe had to take the colt around the field to get into an advan-tages place. At the half mile Margraviate and Fonsolee were leading neck and neck, with All Gold a length and a half back, a head before Prince of Melbourne.

Wax Taper was still last and Combs was trying to get around the field, as there was no chance at the rail. Margraviate, Fonsolee, Latson, Carbunele, All Gold and Prince of Melbourne were racing heads apart at the threequarter-mile pole. Wax Taper was still unable to get into a prominent place. At the head of the stretch Carbuncle, well handled by Landry, and Wax Taper got ahead of the others and a gruelling drive followed. The others and a gruelling drive followed. The horses were bunched heads apart opposite the fifty-cent field, when suddenly Margraviate fell heavily and Shaw disappeared in a cloud of dust with hoofs flying about his head. Margraviate rolled over the boy's proatrate body and jumping up ran after the other horses. Carbuncle, Wax Taper and All Gold crossed the line in the order named, neck and neck, with Latson a length back in fourth place.

A crowd of stable boys and several police-men ran to where Shaw lay, face down on the track. He was unconscious and as he was carried to a soft spot on the turf, the women carried to a soft spot on the turf, the women began to cry:

"Shaw's killed. Poor boy."
It did look pretty dark for the crack jockey at the time, but soon he opened his eyes and rubbed his head with his right hand, on which sparkled a big diamond ring. Shaw was as pale as a ghost. He was more frightened than hurt. His face was scratched and so were his hands, but no bones were broken. In due time the lookey made his way to the steward's stand and started to mount the stairs. But the stewards came down to meet him, for the boy was in evident distress.

J. R. and F. P. Keune's Port Royal was installed favorite to win the first race for two-year-olds that had not wen 1600. The distance was five furiouss. Spencer was in Port Royal's saddle and the money went on in a flood. A. H. and D. H. Morris's Hanover coit Compute was next in demand, with Peninsula looked upon as a good thing at a to to 2. On the way to the post Port Royal was unruly enough to tangle himself up with the rail, slightly injuring one of his hind feet. When the flag tell the Keene coit dashedaway in the lead at a great rate. Peninsula and Compute were fast enough, however, to hang to him and a pretty race was the result. As they reached the bend Port Royal bolted, and before Spencer could straighten him he was beaten. Peninsula then went on and beat Compute by half a length. Vagrant was third, two lengths before Port Royal.

In the second race at one mile Outlander, ridden by Spencer, was a 4-to-5 favorite. The St. Leonard's gelding's weight was 168 pounds as against 126 for Ten Candles, with Shaw up, yet the Candlemas colt was well played at 11 to 10. It was on easy gallop for Outlander. He led all the way and won easily by two lengths in 1:32-5. In a field of fourteen for the last race at one mile and a sixteenth on the grass, Lucky Star was the pick of the talent. Eloim, 100 to 1, led all the way into the stretch. There Lucky Star passed him and won easily by a length and a half. Summaries:

Richard Croker's Sweet Dixte Wins Gatwick

Selling Handicap. Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN. LONDON, June 24.-The Gatwick Selling Handicap of 500 sovereigns for three-year-olds and upward, distance one mile, was won to-day by Richard Croker's Sweet Dixie. Capt. Bewicke's Ocean Rover was second and R. B. Bentley's Wax Toy was third. Eight horses competed. The betting was even money against Sweet Dixie, 100 to 8 against Ocean Rover and the same odds were laid against Wax Toy, J. Reiff rode the winner.

Mr. Croker's Bonita Belle to Be Bred to Flying Fox.

mount the stairs. But the stewards came down to meet him, for the boy was in evident distress.

"Wax Taper cut across in front of me!" said Shaw, "and that is why I fell!"

That appeared to be the truth of the matter in the extination of the stewards, who promptly disqualified Wax Taper. That moved All fold Into second place and put Latson third. Combs was incidentally set down for six days for the offence, though he denied after the decision had been made that he had in any way interfered with Shaw. As a matter of fact Combs rode a bungling race on Wax Taper and in the opinion of good judges he should have won easily with him.

The Tidal Stakes for three-year olds a one nile was the principal stake event. Watercolor was a prohibitive favorite at 7 to 20. Smile was at 5 to 2. Shaw did not have in move on the beautiful Watercress cott and the latter won all the way. Though eased up at the finish, Watercolor made the mile in 138 4-5. Smile, though interfered with and shut off once, ran a fine race and was two lengths behind the victor.

The Pansy Stakes for two-year olds at three-quarters of a mile on turf drew twelve oungsters to the barrier. Cameron was a heavily backed favorite at twos. Dark Secret, with Shaw up, was second choice. The Tammany crowd plunged on Neither One at eights, as much as $5,000 going into the right of the turn was reached. Then he sailed around his field and won in a gallop by a length and a half from Laodice.

J. R. and F. P. Keene's Port Royal was installed favorite to win the first race for two-year-olds that had not won $600. The distance was five furlongs. ST. LOUIS. June 25. —Outsiders and second choices again captured the money to-day. In the third race Lill Sparks opened at 100 and was backed down to 6. After half a dozen false starts the field got off, with Lill left at the post. He was heavily played. A tip was out that a "killing" was to be made on Hotteniot in the fourth, but when the race was run he was back in the bunch, Frank Bell taking the money in record time. Dominis, a long shot, repeated his performance of last week and won the fifth race easily. Summaries:

The New Yorks had a chance to gain on he Pittsburgs yesterday, but the St. Louis the gain, beating the locals in a hard-fought game. The Brooklyns beat the Chicagos and moved up to within six points of Davis's men. Philadelphia whitewashed the to-bogganing Cincinnatis and the Bostons did ot find the Pirates very hard. Pitcher Phyle has been under the weather lately and after pitching eight innings for the New Yorks yesterday he asked to be real leved. Davis put Taylor in to finish the game against st. Louis. He was a pienic for 8t. Louis. Donovan's "Tobesco Troupe" was two runs behind when the ninth inning began, but when the half was finished the team was four runs shead and had won the most exciting game of the year on the Polo Grounds. The visitors lacerated the atmosphere with hits off Taylor's delivery. They perforated the infield with singles and laced torrid liners to the outfield. They made at hits in all in the ninth inning, nearly half as many as they made in the other eight. The same was hard fought and there was action in pearly every lining. Twice the New Yorks were retired with the beases filled. A hit at either of these times would have meant runs and probably won the game for the locals, but a little infield tap was made in each instance, although Harper was wild and not hard to hit at other times. Wallace had his troubles at short. He made fine stops, costly fumbles, stepped on himself once when handling a grounder, interfered with himself and slipped another time.

The hitting began with the drop of the fing. Burkett sent a scorcher to centre for three bases and scored soon after on an out. Yan Haltren hit the ball just as hard for New York in the first inning, but it was only a single. Selbach's single, a sacrifice and an out sent Van Haltren around. The Cardinals accred twice in the second without a hit. Two bases on balls, Hjokman's fumble, a brace of passed balls by Bowerman and a double steal by Nichols and Burkett composed the assortment of plays that produced the two runs. New York's hird inning was full of incident. Phyle reached first on balls, and Van Haltren beat out an infield hit. Selbach struck out, but Nelson singled, filling the bases, Hickman could not get the ball past Krueger and Phyle was forced at the plate. Nichols had to throw himself fat to take the throw, but his chunky antony was s

Smith in the eighth inning.

The game was stirring enough to produce all the vocal outburst needed without provoking anything additional in that line. The St. Louis infielders became decidedly shaky in the eighth and their state of mental disturbance, together with elever bunting, gave the New Yorkers four runs and the lead. St. Louis's half of the ninth started with a hard smash to right by Burkett. Heidrick pasted a smoking grounder to Hickman who made a good stop and touched second base, forcing Burkett. St. Louis was only the more determined at this setback

Taylor's pitching looked easy and the Cardinals set out to make the most of it. McGann stopped a pitched ball with his arm. Donovan singled and when Selbach fielded the ball to second base instead of third Heidrick ran home. Donovan's hit was along the left foul line. Padden walloped a single to right, and McCiann barely outfooted Strang's throw to the plate. Wallace's single bounded off Ganzel's gloved hand and Donovan and Padden remped merrily to the plate, their speed being accelerated by the boisterous coaching of Burkett, who was at third base, and almost having a fit at each succeeding tally.

Nichols completed the job with a three-bagger into the left field chute, Selbach threw in to Davis and third buse being uncovered there was an exciting race between Nichols and Davis. The former slid into the bag with Davis right at his heels and in order to avoid stepping on the base runner the New York captain had to hurdle clear over him. Powell went in for St. Louis in the ninth and mowed the New Yorks down as fast as they stepped to the plate. The second score:

BROOKLYN, 5; CHICAGO, 2.

Kelley's timely single and an error by McCormick won the game for the Champions at Washington Park yesterday afternoon. Gatins started off in the third inning with a three-base hit, McGuire got his base on balls, Kennedy struck out. Kelley, the next batter up, placed a safe one between short and third, scoring both Gatins and McGuire. In the eighth inning Kelley got to first on an error by McCormick and scored on Daly's single, which practically won the same. Chicago sored twice in the sixth inning on Green's home run, a three-bazger by Chance and a single by Raymer. Kennedy started in to do the twirling for the Champions and pitched an excellent game. He had to retire in the fourth inning, owing to hurting a finger on his left hand in trying to stop a hord-hit ball. Kitson took his place, and with the exception of the sixth inning had the visitors at his mercy. The score:

ROWDYISM OF A HARTFORD PLAYER Throws His Bat at the Umpire and Then Gets a Thump on the Jaw. ROCHESTER. June 25 .- The ninth innine of to-day's game at Culver Par between the Rochester and Hartford Eastern League teams was marked by a disgraceful exhibition of rowdyism on the part of several of the Hartford players, culminating in an attack upon Umpire Al Warner by Charles Kuhns, the visitor's left fielder. Kuhns threw his bat at Warner, striking him across the arm and started to walk to the bench the pitcher and notified Kuhns that he was fined and out of the game. The latter then pire and by way of retort received a left swing on the jaw that staggered him. Pitcher Bowen of the Rochester team rushed between the men then, and three policemen came down into the field and escorted the came down into the field and escorted the Hartford player from the field.

Warner has written the particulars of the assault to President Pat Powers, of the Eastern League, and intends to push the case to the limit. The trouble in the ninth inning started when a strike was called on Capt. Manager Shindle, for several years a member of the National League team in Brooklyn. Shindle objected to the decision and was fined $5. Catcher Steelman, another ex-Brooklyn player, who yesterday distinguished himself by hurling a bat at the umpire when the latter's back was turned, began abusing the unpire and was first fined and ordered then from the grounds. Several other members of the visiting team joined in the shouting, Kuhns being one of the most persistent.

When Kuhns came to the bat after Shindle two strikes were called on him and a moment later, he went out on a populur fit.

When Kuhns came to the bat after Shindle two strikes were called on him and a moment later he went out on a pop-up fly. It was then that he hurled the bat at Warner. The crowd howled for Kuhns's expulsion from the field and there was a movement among the more turbulent spectators to go down on the field and take a hand in the proceedings, in which event Kuhns would have been roughly handled Pitcher McCann, of the Hartford team, was also fined in yesterday game for too emphatic protest against a decision of the umpire.

HARVARD SHUTS OUT YALE. GREAT PITCHING BY CLARKSON, WHO

cond and Deciding Game Between Criment and Blue a Pitchers' Battle—Cambridge Mon Outbut and Outfield Their Rivals —Many Alumni on Hand—Score 3 to 6. NEW HAVEN, June 25 .- Harvard defeated Tale here this afternoon in the second ball game before about 6,000 persons. It was a genuine pitchers' battle and the score was to 0. Clarkson, Harvard's crack pitcher, gave an exhibition of twirling the equal of which has seldom, if ever, been seen here. He held Yale down to one selltary hit. Robertson, Yale's captain and pitcher, did not have the ability of the Harvard man at any part of the game, although he did fine work in some innings. Clarkson won the game for Harvard without a doubt. All the classes arrived at the field in separate bodies, headed by brass bands. The classes of '71, '86, '91, '95 and '98 were out in large numbers. The class of '91 had chartered several automobiles, and two or three impromptu races were run off while waiting for the teams to appear. Yale alumni were in their glory. At 2:45 the Harvard team came on the field and were ates and undergraduates of Yale and a second and weaker cheer arose from the Harvard supporters immediately afterward. Shortly after the Harvard men retired a countless number of small blue balloons were sent loating out on the field. One of the classes had tossed them out as they saw the Tale nine coming out. Then a obser was had tossed them out as they saw the Tale nime coming out. Then a cheer was sent up for the nime soms of Eli who were to do battle with a team that had already defeated them. Tale won the toss and took the field. To the surprise of everybody Barnwell, one of the best outfielders in the country, was in centre. He has been out of the hospital orly a week. He insisted on playing. He spraised his side a month ago and had undergone an operation from which he had not fully recovered. Wendell went to the bat first and fouled out.

Clark aimed a grounder at O'Rourke who stopped it nicely but made a bad throw to Sharpe, letting Clark to first. Barnwell dropped a fly from Reid and Frantz sent a ball to Waddell. Here a good chance for a double play was lost by Waddell's lack of agility and Clark ran to third. His stay there was brief for when Hirsch tried to throw out Frantz in an attempt to steal second, he came home. Stillman struck out Guernsey went to first base on balls. Barnwell went out on strikes. Waddell's easy grounder was picked up by Clarkson and the only double play of the same was effected. The manner in which the Harvard nine nitched into the battle was inspiring and Yale spirits sank at the end of the inning, so low that no cheering was begun by the undergraduates until the fifth inning, and but for the occasional yells from the alumni, the Yale side of the field was very still. O'Rourke did good work at short stop, and for the remainder of the game he kept his wits about him and threw well. In the fifth wendell got his base on balls. Clark bunted to Robertson and went out. Wendeli reached second and came home on Reid's two-bagger. Frantz sent a hot one to short, and O'Rourke, after making a fine stop, threw him out at first. Reid had reached third, however, and Stillman found Robertson for a single which sent Reid home, making the score s to 0. Yale's leaders tried to arouse the the team to victory by long and lusty cheers, but Clarkson continued to fan out the men who came to the bat. Yale tried to brace

CONSTITUTION'S FIRST BRUSH. A Brief Affair With the Navahoe in Which the NEWPORT, June 25 -The Cup defender Constitution had her first brush to-day, if the incident can be called such, her opponen being the yawl Navahoe, which brought the Brenton's Reef cup back from England. It was a short brush, less than a minute, in which the Navahoe de nonstrated that she was no match for the new boat. It was a fine day for sailing, the morning being devoted to light airs and the afternoon to a whole-sail breeze. The mainsail and No. 2 club topsail were set early on the Constitution, and Mr. accompanied by Capt. Nat Herresheff, the first time that he has sailed on the yacht since the accident to her mast, when he was at the wheel. To-day he spent all his time in inspecting every part of the rigging, and it was only for a few minutes while Capt. Rhodes went forward that he had the wheel. The wind in the morning was from the northeast and the water in the bay was smooth as glass. Outside there was hardly a breath of wind, so Mr. Duncan decided to spend the morning inside. After leaving her moorings the Constitution started to beat up the bay, the Constitution started to beat up the bay, on the way having plenty of drill with light sails. After beating up as far as Conanicut Park she came about and with sheets eased off to port ran down the bay. The wind had materially decreased, and the yacht barely made steerage way. When she got off Jamestown it sprang up a little, but only held long enough for her to sail completely around the Navahoe, which was out testing her compasses. Royal Phelps Carroll was at the wheel.

made steerage way. When she got on Jamestown it sprang up a little, but only held long enough for her to sail completely around the Navahoe, which was out testing her compasses. Royal Phelps Carroll was at the wheel.

The Navahoe was trying to set her club topsail at the time, and had no jib topsail. As soon as the Constitution was abreast of the Navahoe, Capt, Rhodes had the sheets trimmed in and it was evident that he was going to try conclusions with the yaw! The Navahoe was on the port tack and the Constitution rounded up astern and was soon headed on the same tack, out well to the leeward. The sails of the Navahoe had no effect on the new boat. She came along as if the Navahoe was at anchor, passed through her lee, and worked out to the windward across her bow. It was all over in fifty-two seconds. The Constitution was again brought about and headed down the channel.

Mr. Duncan was hailed and said that he was going to try and get outside, hoping that more wind would be found. Capt. Herreshoff was sent ashore in a launch before going out to sea. It was 1 o'clock when the yacht got out past the Dumplings, and it was then seen that there was a fine southwest breeze off shore, and before many minutes it reached the yacht. Where she had been lumbering along at an easy gait she suddenly filled away as an object taking life, and shot ahead as an arrow from a bow. From that time on the Constitution had the best day outside that she has ever had, and she showed remarkable speed, not only on the wind, but in reaching and running.

Starting from Brenton's Reef Lightship she was sailed over a triangle, in which all points of sailing were brought out and she walked away from steam yachts with ease. Leaving the Lightship she started down the Narragansett shore on the wind, making several long tacks. When off the pier she wore ship so that the crew might set up the bowspirt, which had apparently worked loose.

Mr. Duncan took the wheel as soon as she got outside, and he did not favor her at all, keeping her a hard full

Hobart Boats Wright in the Crescent Invitation

The "round robin" invitation lawn tennis tournament of the Crescent Athletic Club began yesterday afternoon at the Bay Ridge grounds of the club. A larga crowd of enthusiasts was present, and the play developed enough excitement to keep them almost constantly applauding. In the absence of Ware, who was not due until to-day, Larned played Stevens and Hobart met Wright. Larned's easy victory was not surprising. but Hobart's form was a distinct surprise, and his victory over Wright, officially ranked fourth player in the country last year, served to emphasize the benefit the veteran had gained by his two years' experience abroad against the English cracks,

There is little to be said about the Larned-Stevens match. The base-line expert never had a chance to win, and after the first set he played rather heartlessly. Larned simply rushed to the net at every opportunity, after forcing Stevens in difficulties with deep ground drive, and then killed the next return , His overhead smashing soon disvouraged Stevens in his efforts to dislodge

Larned by lobbing. The Hobart-Wright match, on the other hand, was full of excitement and attracted the lion's share of the spectators. It was Hobart's first appearance against a strong American player since 1897, and all were with the younger men of the present day. At the start Wright seemed to have an easy task before him. He ran in behind every task before him. He ran in behind every service and after each return of his opponent. Hobart seemed erratic at first and Wright profited so heavily by his errors that he soon had a lead of 4—0 in the first set.

Then Hobart settled down to hard work and his passing "drop" strokes were simply wonderful. He hit the ball so fast and so accurately that Wright could not hold the net against him, and as Wright seemed to lose some of his original confidence and slowed up his strokes in his effort to play safe Hobart only drove faster and ran off with six straight games, taking the first set by 6—4.

safe Hobart only drove faster and ran off with six straight games, taking the first set by 6-4.

In the second Wright again got a lead at the start, taking all of the first three games. Then Hobart started in to bang the balls again, and after each had won another game the veteran again ran out the set with five brilliant games in succession. With two sets against him, the Harvard player was still game and again he led off with 3-0 in the third set. Hobart strick another streak and took foursuccessive games, only to lose the next three and the set by 6-4.

In the last set, Hobart again got his brilliant drives well under control, and Wright found it impossible to voiley them at the net. The Bostonian took the second and third games, but Hobart then took give straight, and ran out the set with the ninth after dropping one more. This gave him the match by three sets to one, and put him down at once as a possible candidate for the American International team, hurting Wright's chances correspondingly for making the team.

The schedule was announced last night for the rest of the week. This afternoon Ware will meet Wright and Hobart will play Stevens. To-morrow Larned will meet Ware, and Wright will play Stevens. The method will play Stevens, and on Saturday the matches will be Ware vs. Hobart and Larned vs. Wright, Yesterday's summary:

Cornell Council Said to Be in Favor of Francis Rowing at Poughkeepste.

ITRACA, June 25 .- The Cornell Athletic Council met to-day to take action on the Francis matter. There was a session of some four hours and a decision was arrived at, but no announcement of the result was made. It was learned, however, that the ouncil decided to allow Francis to enter council decided to allow Francis to enter the single-scull event, and influence and pressure will be brought to bear on the Cornell oarsmen at Poughkeepsie to induce them to change their minds in the matter A representative of the council left for Poughkeepsie to-night to talk the matter over with the crew. It is said strong arguments will be used, and that it is probable that the men can be induced to allow Francis to enter the race. There is a strong feeling against this among them, because Francis decided not to row on the crew this year and also because he secured the services of Ten Eyck as coach.

GREENPORT, N. Y., June 25 .- The sloop yacht Zinits arrived here Sunday from England. Zinita was purchased in England last winter by E. M. Padelford of Washington, D. C., while he was on a tour through the British Isles and the Continent. After being fitted up for the rough weather which may be expected on a trip across the Atlantic at this time of the year Zinita started on her long voyage on May 16. She was in command of Captain George Litton, who had with him a crew of four hardy seamen. Pleasant weather favored them and the yacht proceeded to break the records of all the sailing yachts that have come from England the past season and arrived in Greenport harbor on Sunday, June 23, at noon. Greencek, Scotland, was the port from which Zinita sailed. Brooklyn Advertisements.

Miss Beatrix Hoyt played No. 1 and was beaten by Miss Marion Oliver, who was quite on the best game she showed at the Metropolitan championship last week. The course was in fine condition, but the hard surface rather put the visitors off in their short game. The day was very hot. Miss Helen Parrish, who started out with Mrs. N. Pendieton Rogers, after holing out on the first green was overcome by the heat and had to retire. Mrs. G. Warrington Curtis took her place as substitute. Mrs. Curits won the point for being up at the turn and made a grand effort to win the match, but she finished one down through just missing the put for a 4 on the home green. This gave the count of a point for the match to Mrs. Rogers. Mrs. Morgan and Miss Wickhand, the two captains, were paired, the former winning a good match. Mrs. Charles S.
